Mahncke Park

Neighborhood Conservation District

Executive Summary

In response to the City's 1997 Master Plan and the 1998 Community Revitalization Action Group (CRAG) Report, the Neighborhood Conservation District (NCD) was created to be a proactive tool to address neighborhood sustainability through compatible infill construction and rehabilitation in unique areas of the city.

Since the adoption of the NCD enabling ordinance and development of the NCD program, five (5) NCD ordinances have been approved by City Council; South Presa Street/South St. Mary's Street (NCD-1), Alta Vista (NCD-2), Ingram Hills (NCD-3), Whispering Oaks (NCD-4) and Beacon Hill Area (NCD-5).

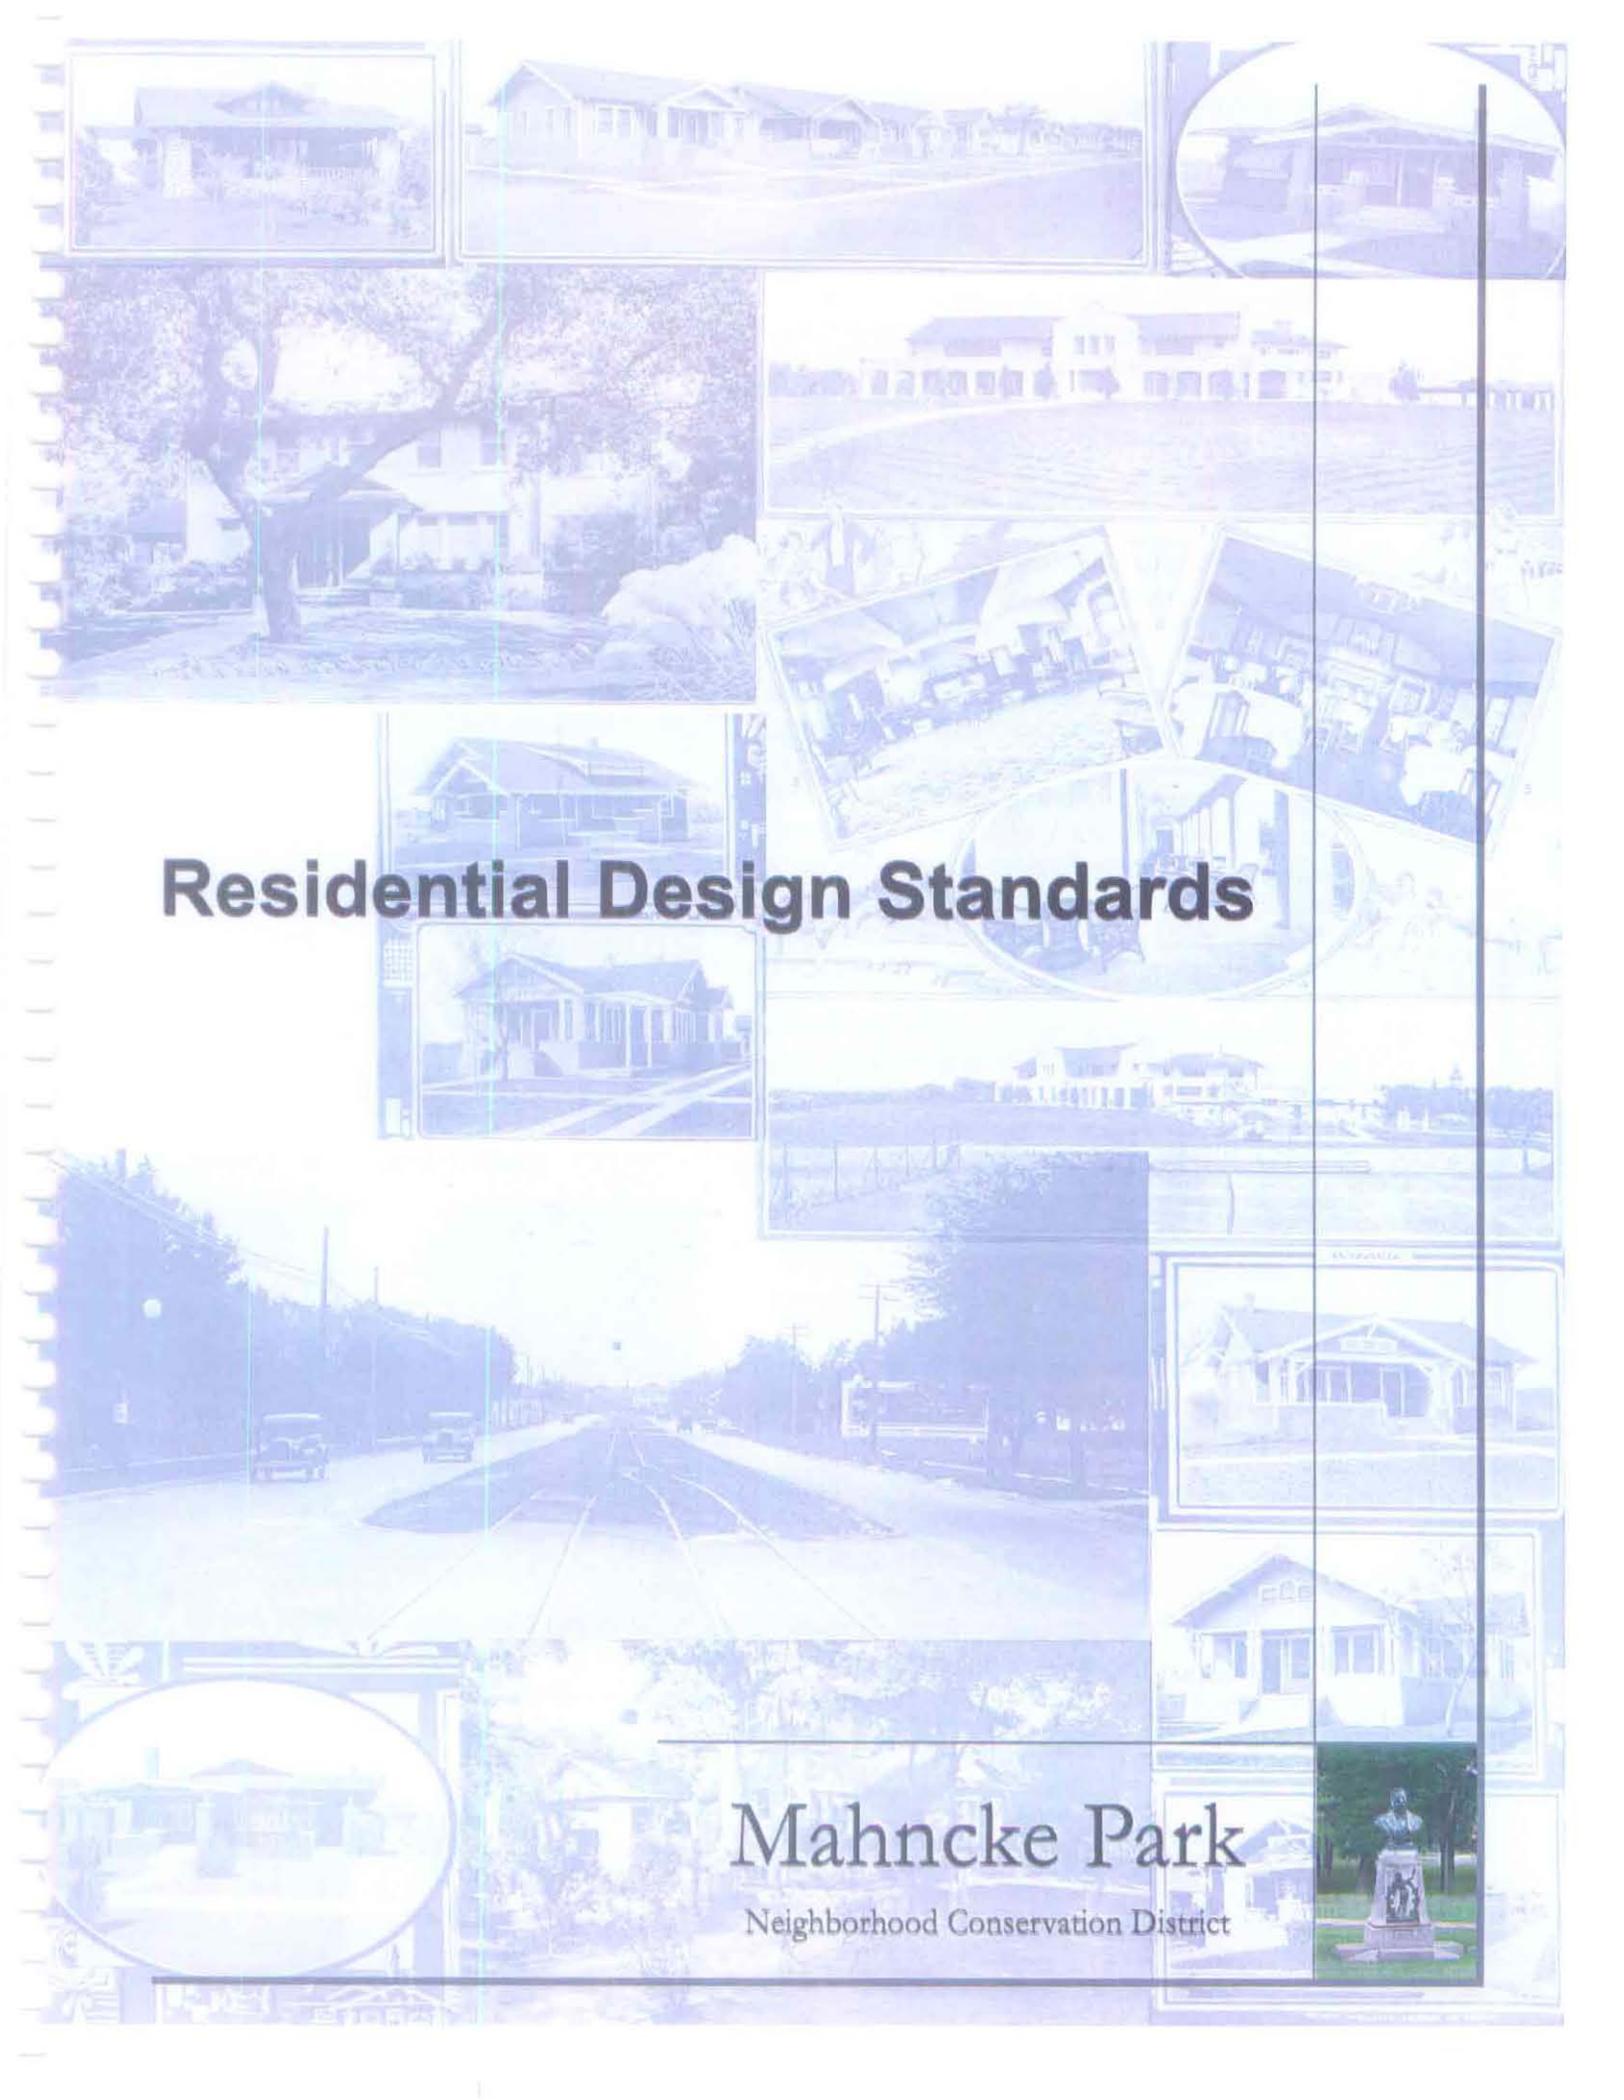

The Mahncke Park neighborhood was selected to be the second of three neighborhoods to begin the designation process for the 2004-2005 fiscal year. The ordinance process was initiated on the basis of its recommendation found in the Mahncke Park Neighborhood Plan, adopted on October 12, 2001. There are 444.7 acres of land and 928 parcels within the proposed district. Neighborhood Conservation Districts can be established in areas that possess distinctive character-defining features, where at least 75% of the land area within the district contains structures that are at least 25 years old and at least 75% of the land area within the district is improved or developed. The Mahncke Park NCD area meets the ordinance requirements with 92.1% of the land area containing structures that are 25 years or older and 95.4% of the land area presently improved.

The residential architecture is dominated by Craftsman style (also called Bungalow style) homes with a good mixture of other architectural styles and building sizes across the geography of the NCD area. The commercial corridor along East Hildebrand Avenue and Broadway Street was not included in the NCD zoning overlay due to the fact the area already has a zoning overlay; the River Improvement Overlay (RIO-1), which emplaces design standards on those properties in the same functional manner as the NCD. While the architecture of the area, particularly in the residential areas, is an important feature, the design standards found in this plan are not designed to enforce architectural style, but are crafted to perpetuate historical arrangements of buildings, scale, massing of building volumes, celebrate the original character of buildings, de-emphasize and conceal spaces designed for the automobile, increase the number and quality of spaces designed for interaction between neighbors and improve the visual appeal of the entire area. While restrictive in nature, the design standards are not designed to make improvements or development costly. The completion of the designation process brings to fruition the neighborhood's vision of protecting and preserving the unique character of the Mahncke Park neighborhood; an idea which was nurtured over the course of several years. In addition, this designation meets the intent and upholds the spirit of Neighborhood Conservation District Program.

Residential Design Standards

Mahncke Park

Neighborhood Conservation District

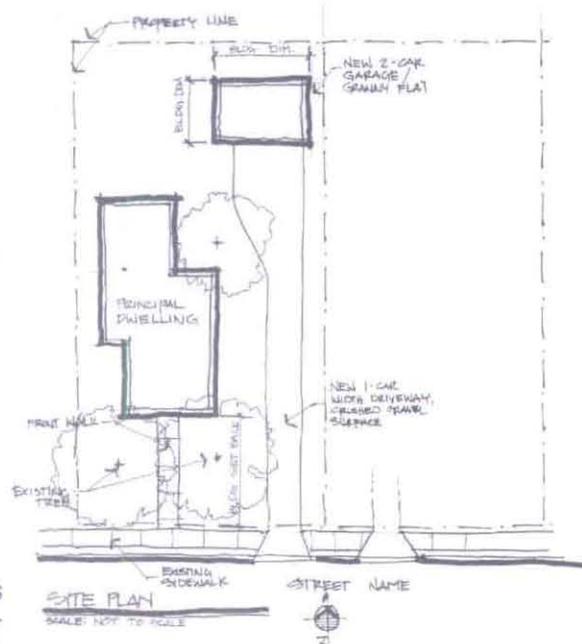

HOW TO USE THIS DOCUMENT:

The Mahncke Park Neighborhood Conservation District Plan is divided into three major sections: the Residential Design Standards, Residential Design Guidelines, and Appendices.

The Residential Design Standards specifically address design-related requirements for properties that contain residential uses ranging from single-family residential uses up to the common high density residential uses. The Residential Design Guidelines target the same residential properties, but offer suggested means and methods of addressing design issues specific to the neighborhood conditions. While the design guidelines are not enforceable, the guidelines represent the community's values and appropriate design solutions which will further the cause of preserving the neighborhood character.

There are no design standards that apply to non-residential uses with structures originally designed for commercial use within the district. As of the date of the adoption of the ordinance, non-residential structures that were originally designed as commercial structures may not have to comply with the NCD Design Standards, though could be if the district standards were to be amended to include commercial or non-residential structures in the future. However, structures within the district that were originally built for residential use, but converted to commercial use shall be required to comply with NCD standards. Original residential use shall be determined through the Sanborn Fire Insurance Maps and City Directories.

Example of minimal site plan requirements for NCD approvals

In each section, several design issues are addressed in accordance with the comments and information gathered during the public meeting process. On many of the pages, notes and definitions are annotated to provide the user information about the character of the neighborhood as it pertains to a specific development item or defines a specific term that applies to a particular design standard. The definitions found in the Glossary Section (Appendix A) are explained in accepted language found in architectural and construction publications, which includes the City of San Antonio Unified Development Code. The Design Guidelines Section, which describes certain building or design techniques that are desired in the area, are not enforceable conditions of approval or denial of a requested permit.

The final sections of note in this document are the map appendix, Neighborhood and Building Characteristics Maps Section (Appendix B) which helps to graphically identify the character defining features found in the neighborhood; and the Property Owners Listing (Appendix C), which is a required component of the NCD plan as set forth by UDC Section 35-335, Neighborhood Conservation Districts.

1. General

1.1. The Mahncke Park Neighborhood Conservation District (NCD) design standards apply to new construction projects and to improvements or renovations to existing structures where the work requires a building permit and is specifically governed by the NCD design standards. In the case of ordinary repair and maintenance, existing non-compliant structures or conditions shall not be required to conform to the design standards, although any modifications shall not increase the non-conforming condition.

2. Land Development and Site Design Standards

Residential Design Guidelines & Commentary

Mahncke Park

Neighborhood Conservation District

C1. General Commentary

C1.1. The intent of this document is to promote those common predominant features of the neighborhood so that those features may be preserved and perhaps enhanced in future developments for future generations to enjoy. It is not intended to interfere with maintenance or upkeep, regardless of the compliance of the existing property, nor is it intended to prevent development or renewal within or among the existing fabric.

C2. Site Development Commentary

C2.1. Lot Size and Coverage

The neighborhood hopes to maintain the scale and rhythm of the existing streetscape. This relationship between the building mass and the space between the building (solid/void ratio) informs and guides these standards. Two conditions are intentionally discouraged although not prohibited:

1.) the aggregation of single-family lots into larger lots, whereby a property owner could build a structure of a scale inconsistent with adjacent existing structures; 2.) the aggregation and then subdivision of lots into smaller lots, inconsistent with the adjacent structures and existing subdivision pattern.

C2.2. Landscaping

The neighborhood's stock of mature trees is well documented and is often mentioned as one of its appealing characteristics. The neighborhood hopes: to preserve mature versions of certain species; promote the installation of new, geographically appropriate, long-lived, canopy-type trees; and encourage pedestrian-friendly paths.

C2.3. Utilities

Recent utility improvements have resulted in incompatible elements and continued infringement on useful public and private spaces.

C2.4. Parking

The neighborhood hopes to increase accommodations for off-street parking for all dwelling types, recognizing that modern families likely own more than one vehicle. Consistent with the rest of this document, the neighborhood expects conservation of existing streetscape, including front-yard play areas and high visibility for backing cars and crossing pedestrian traffic.

C2.5. Driveways

The neighborhood hopes to promote the surprising consistency of existing driveway configurations and composition. Furthermore, it is intended to limit the percent of pervious front-yard coverage, promote the existing rhythm of narrow driveways and landscape, and to promote barrier-free pedestrian access across a lot. Single car "ribbon" type driveways were found to be prevalent in the neighborhood and are strongly encouraged.

Mahncke Park

Neighborhood Conservation District

C2.6. Sidewalks and Front Walks

The neighborhood presently accommodates comfortable pedestrian movements, and every effort should be made to promote this character. Proximity of fencing and landscaping, tree canopy, condition of the sidewalk, and proximity to parked cars or street traffic all impact the decision of a pedestrian to walk along a path. Landscaping is encouraged and paving discouraged in front of the structures.

C2.7. Fences and walls

The open streetscape is predominant in the neighborhood, with few structures between the street and the front face of the buildings. Fences in general, unnaturally obscure the streetscape and are discouraged. Front yard fencing, when found to be necessary, should complement the structure, reinforce the existing conditions, promote visibility, and enhance the pedestrian experience along the sidewalk. Retaining walls and other solid walls in general are strongly discouraged.

C2.8. Mail boxes

As noted above, the open streetscape is predominant. Mailboxes are presently attached to the primary structures or are attached to the front yard fence. This pattern should be continued. Free-standing mail collection structures are inappropriate.

C2.9. Lighting

The neighborhood hopes to encourage security practices which do not unnecessarily compete with pedestrian or adjacent property owner comforts. This text is compiled from several successful urban codes which share this intent.

C3. Building Commentary

C3.1. Building Size and Massing

The predominant single-family structure is thirty-five feet (35'-0") in width. Significantly larger structures would be considered inconsistent. The scale of multi-family structures is limited to remain somewhat consistent with potentially adjacent single-family uses.

C3.2. Building Height

No commentary.

C3.3. Building Materials

The neighborhood does not have one single characteristic building material. However, there are predominant materials: horizontal wood siding, wood shingles, brick, stone, and stucco. The use of these materials is strongly encouraged in new construction. Though consistency of improvements to an existing structure is upheld, the neighborhood provides no other standards for building materials.

Mahncke Park

Neighborhood Conservation District

C3.4. Principal Elevation Features

Style is specifically avoided in this Conservation District. However, predominant features in the neighborhood include a moderate void ratio and transition space. The entry sequence and transition space is an imperative key to the front-yard community space mentioned above. Front doors need not face the primary street, as they are often oriented perpendicular to it, but should be obvious from the primary street and should conclude the entry sequence. Vertically oriented or square windows, especially in pairs or triplets, are strongly encouraged, as they are found predominantly in the neighborhood. Accommodations for deep sills, wide trim, and/or decorative screens might also be considered, depending upon the intended architectural style of the new structure or the architectural style of an existing one.

C3.5. Roof

Although roofs in the neighborhood might be categorized into predominant forms, it is believed that the roof should be consistent with the style of the new structure but do not believe a standard is appropriate. Roofs of moderate slope (4:12 to 7:12) are encouraged and parapets are strongly encouraged for the front façade of flat roofed structures.

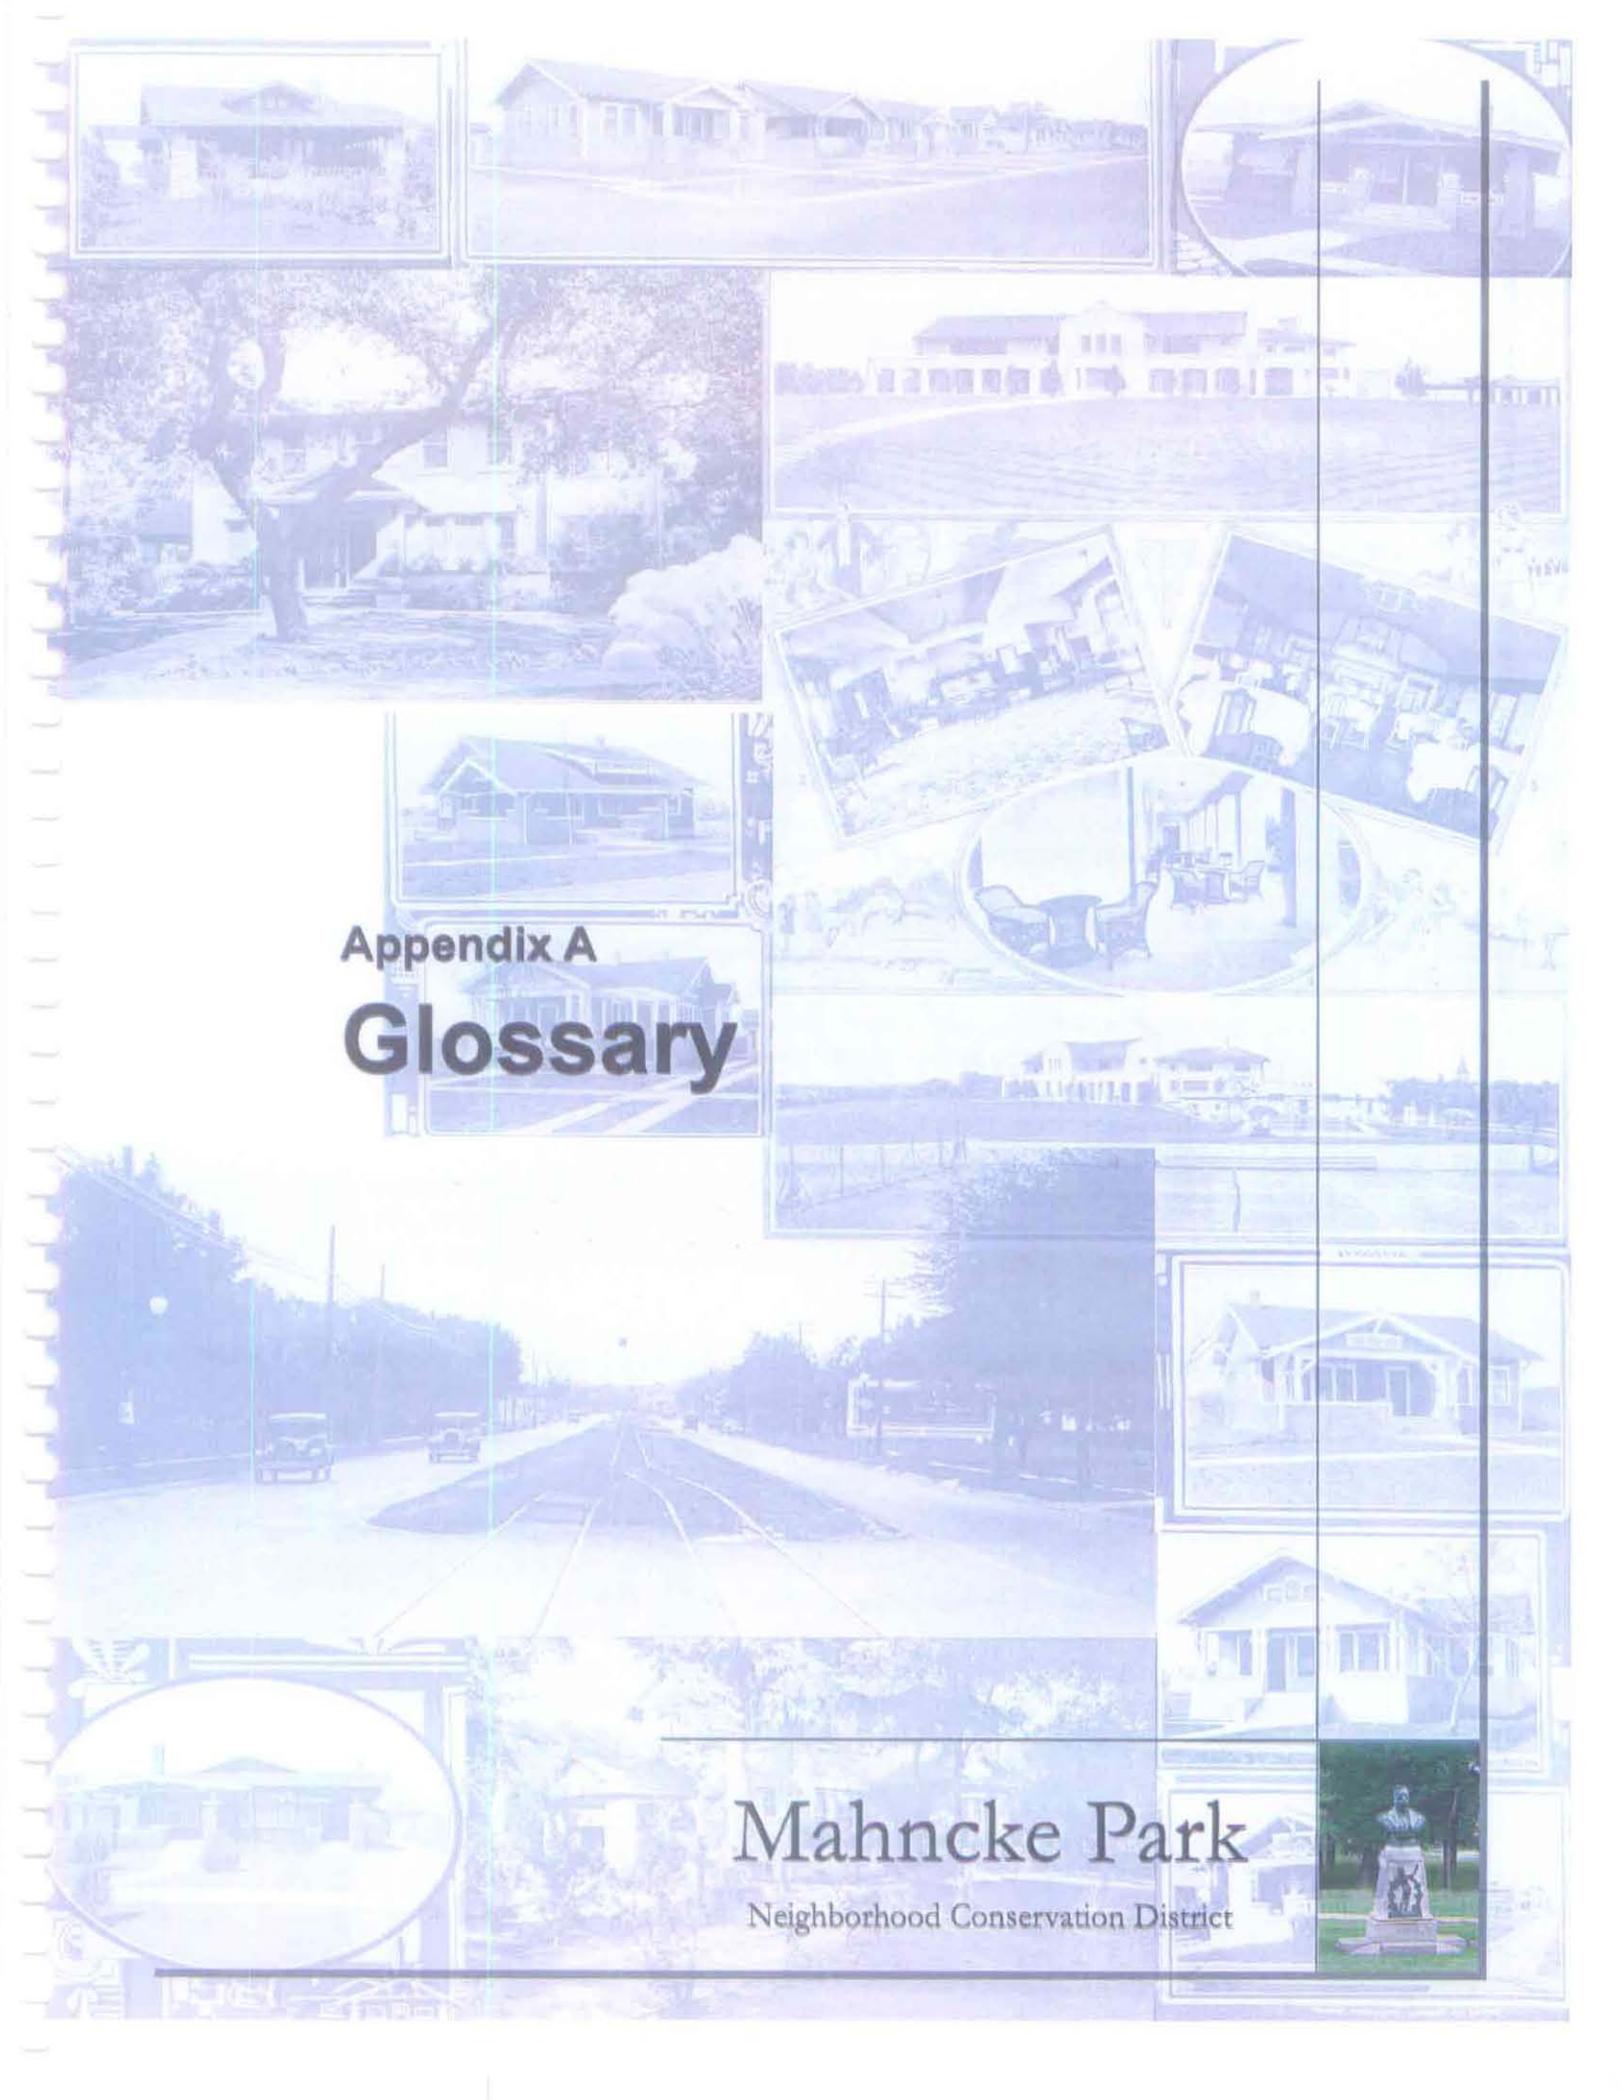

C3.6. Garages, Carports, Accessory Structures and Accessory Dwellings

Garages are found predominantly detached and in the rear of the properties. This arrangement contributes to the front-yard space promoted above. Accessory structures are a popular means of improving existing properties. An inconsistency of the UDC standards and the neighborhood's physical character was found by the neighborhood regarding definitions of "accessory dwellings" and "accessory structures" which permitted large additions to properties for which a physical relationship to the primary structure was not required. The neighborhood intends that all major additions and substantial rehabilitations/improvements relate to and compliment the architecture of principal structure in form, scale, material and detailing.

The commentaries have been legislatively adopted together with the formal text of this chapter. They are intended as a guide to the administration and interpretation of the chapter and shall be treated in the same manner as other aspects of legislative history.

Pervious pavement - A pavement system with traditional strength characteristics, but which allows rainfall to percolate through it rather than running off. A permeable pavement system utilizes either porous asphalt, pervious concrete, or plastic pavers interlaid in a running bond pattern and either pinned or interlocked in place. Porous asphalt consists of an open graded course aggregate held together by asphalt with sufficient interconnected voids to provide a high rate of permeability. Pervious concrete is a discontinuous mixture of Portland cement, coarse aggregate, admixtures, and water which allow for passage of runoff and air. Examples of permeable pavement systems include Grasspave2®, Gravelpave2®, Turfstone®, and UNI Eco-stone®. (See Watershed Management Institute, Inc. and U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, Office of Water, Operation, Maintenance & Management of Stormwater Management (Aug. 1997), at 2-32; Booth & Leavitt, Field Evaluation of Permeable Pavement Systems for Improved Stormwater Management, 65 J. Am. Planning Ass'n 314 (Summer 1999), at 314-325.

Residential district or residential zoning district - Any of the following zoning districts: "R-3", "R-4", "R-5", "R-6", "R-20", "RE", "RM-4", "RM-5", "RM-6", "MF-24", "MF-33", "MF-40" or "MF-50".

Mahncke Park

Neighborhood Conservation District

*Street-facing façade - That portion or portions of a wall of any permanent structure that is visible from and oriented parallel to a dedicated public right of way. This includes structures which have incurred "repetitive loss" or "substantial damage", regardless of the actual repair work performed. The term does not, however, include either: (1) Any project for improvement of a structure to correct existing violations of state or local health, sanitary, or safety code specifications which have been identified by the local code enforcement official and which are the minimum necessary conditions or (2) Any alteration of a "historic structure", provided that the alteration will not preclude the structure's continued designation as a "historic structure."

Subject property - The property subject to an application for development approval.

Substantial rehabilitation - Certified improvements to a historic building in which the cost of the project is equal to or greater than fifty (50) percent of the appraised pre-rehabilitation improvement value of the property and which constitutes major work on enhancing existing mechanical or structural systems that preserve the historical integrity, while extending the life of the building.

Transparent - Capable of transmitting light in a manner which permits a person standing outside of a building to view shapes, tones, and objects inside a building. A tinted window is considered "transparent" if it meets the requirements recited herein.

Use - The purpose for which land or structures thereon is designed, arranged or intended to be occupied or used, or for which it is occupied, maintained, rented or leased.

Window - An opening constructed in a wall and which admits light or air to an enclosure, is framed and spanned with glass, and which may be mounted to permit opening and closing.

The Existing Land Use Map provides a depiction of current land uses within the district and helped guide the design standards development by providing insight to the types of uses and structures that exist the neighborhood. This graphic shows a mixture of residential uses of varying intensities and a very small contingent of non-residential/commercial uses. Consequently, the design standards clearly focus on the residential uses and further guided creation of design standards that are sensitive to both single-family and multi-family residential uses or varying intensities and volumetric scales.

Sidewalk Condition
 City of San Antonio

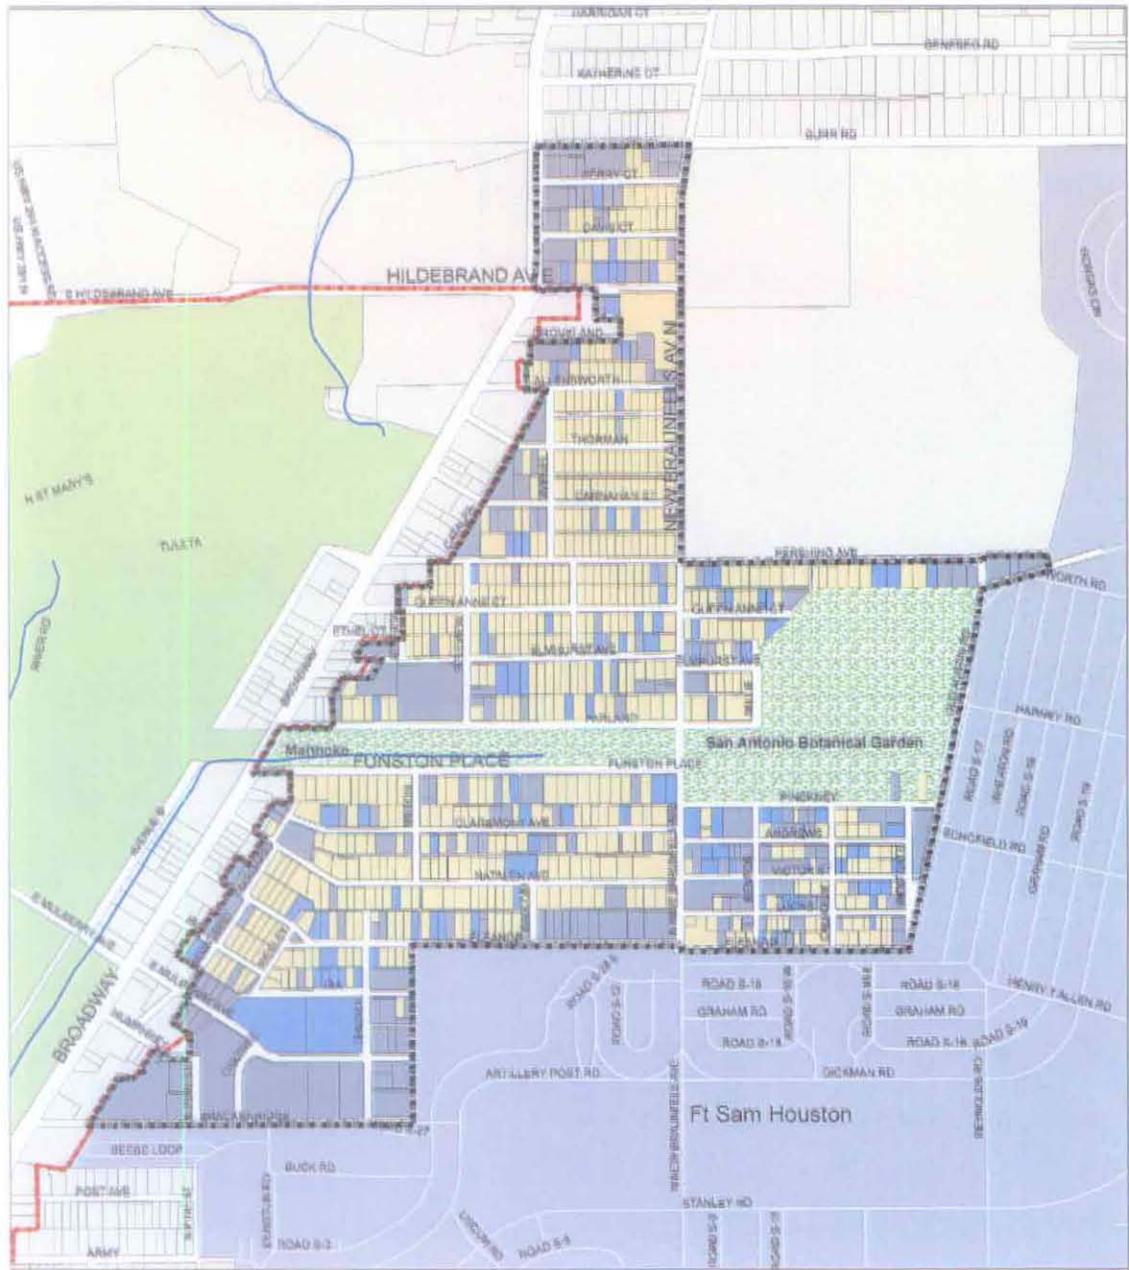

The Sidewalk Condition Map simply depicts the overall condition (good, fair, bad or non-existent) of sidewalks within the district. As the light red color would indicate, the majority of the sidewalks in the neighborhood are in serviceable condition, however there are multiple areas with fair, bad or no existing sidewalks. The NCD design standards regulate the design of new sidewalks and integration of new sidewalks with existing ones.

The map above illustrates the existence of a front walk leading from the curb or existing sidewalks to the front entry space or transition space on residential properties. The overwhelming frequency of this condition led to the development of a design standard that specifically requires this element which preserves and perpetuates the feature in the Mahncke Park Neighborhood.

Mahncke Park

The Driveway Width Map illustrates an obvious feature in most residential neighborhoods, but helps to draw some conclusions on the amount of paving and parcel coverage used for the storage and placement of vehicles. The frequency of the single width driveways and driveways with ribbons indicates that the original development was not as vehicle oriented as typical suburban neighborhoods of today. Recognizing this historical pattern, design standards were written to accommodate vehicles on parcels, but to visually de-emphasize structures and visible accommodations for vehicles.

Residential Use Configuration
 City of San Antonio

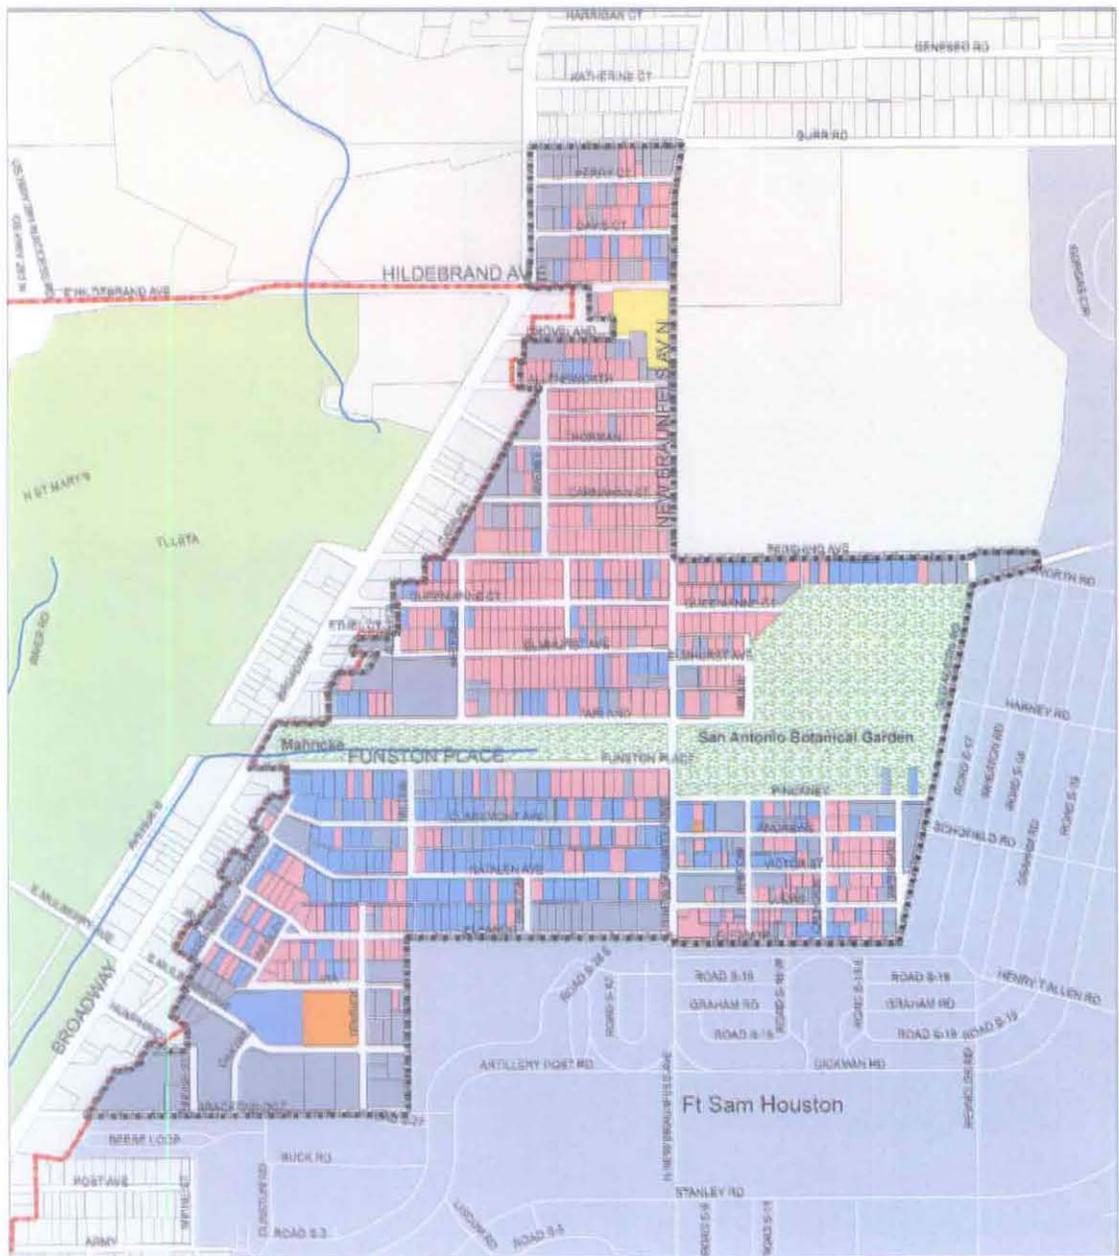

Similar to the Existing Land Use Map, the map above helps to further describe the residential uses and building types and their concentrations. This evaluation of residential development was completed in order to ensure that design standards were developed in a manner sensitive to the historical and existing residential building types and densities.

The Building Height map clearly illustrates the predominance of one-story structures in the neighborhood's northern sector and a slight majority of two-story structures in the southern sector. The design standards were crafted to allow for appropriate heights of buildings to maintain a sense of scale in the neighborhood and compatibility of building masses with adjacent structures.

Exterior Building Material

The Exterior Building Materials Map illustrates a predominance of wood siding in the neighborhood with a mixture of brick, stone, asbestos siding and stucco. While the predominant material is wood, the design standards development process recognized that there are a variety of materials found throughout the district by allowing a small palette of materials while restricting inappropriate materials such as vinyl and asbestos siding.

The NCD design standards seek to perpetuate the existence of a 'transition' space which helps define a sequence of the experience of entry into buildings within this district from street to yard to a porch, stoop, nook, court or alcove (a transition space as defined in the NCD standards) to the inside of residential structures. This common sequence is signified by the frequency of 'transition' spaces depicted in the Front Porch Configuration.

The Garage Configuration Map shows the frequency of detached garages throughout the neighborhood as well as the existence of carports. Consequently, the NCD design standards offer regulations for accommodating automobiles so as to allow for garages and carports, but ensure that they are either visually de-emphasized or well integrated with the principal dwelling with matching material and location so as not to detract from the visual appeal of individual structures and the streetscapes of the neighborhood.

Typically, most properties within the district do not have front yard fencing. Over the course of time, the item was placed on properties with regularity in the southeastern section of the neighborhood, the NCD design standards make allowances for the installation of front yard fencing, which has occurred over time in the district. While there are allowance for this trend, the standards ensure that fencing installed is as visually appealing as possible.
